ITS BACKBONE IS BROKEN.

End of the Rebellion Only Matter of Time.

WILCOX'S COMMAND SURROUNDED.

Soldiers Fail to Force Battle on Thursday.

DAY SPENT IN BUSHWHACKING.

Government Forces Have an Opportunity to Rest—Man-of-war Esmeralda Arrives in Port From South America—Native Police May be Sent Into the Mountains.

"The back-bone is broken," was the terse review of the rebellion given by Minister King, last evening. This expression of the case is thoroughly corroborated by the events of yesterday.

The rebels are keeping as far away from the Government forces as it is possible. Their superior knowledge of the mountains and passes gives them a great advantage, though it is only a matter of time when they must give up, judging from the appearance of the few prisoners brought in during the day. They are getting short of food and are badly worn and weary by hard marches through the mountains, and exposure. Prisoners state that the wounded men are in a sorry plight, having nothing with which to dress their wounds.

The day Thursday, was passed trying to get a shot at Wilcox's men, in the Pauoa and Manoa valleys. Murray's men came in during the afternoon from a fruitless skirmish through the Palolo and Manoa regions, to locate Nowlein's company. The men had been out all night and looked like veritable bushwhackers when they arrived at the station. They were ordered home for a much needed rest.

During the forenoon the sharpshooters went up Nuuanu Valley and from there went across to the Pauoa region. They could discover no opposition and returned in the afternoon. Company B men were on Tantalus and the regulars under Captain Zeigler and Lieutenant Coyne and King held their positions in the Pauoa Valley. Last night at 6 o'clock a body of men went out with Mr. McStocker to the Pali where they were placed under the command of Alfred Carter.

Henry Poole, a half-white was brought in a prisoner during the day. He says Greig and Widemann have not been seen since the rebels left Diamond Head.

In the city the principal arrest of the day was that of Thomas B. Walker. He was taken to the station by Mr. B. F. Dillingham. Joe Aea and young Barto were the other arrests.

At 1:20 o'clock last night forty men under Captain Camara were ordered to Nuuanu Valley to reinforce the squad of Citizens Guard. Company B with fifty men, spent the night on Tantalus. Lieutenant Carter with thirteen men of Company C, is on Punchbowl. Captain King with thirty men from E, is in the Pauoa Valley, and Captain Zeigler with his fifty men are in Manoa Valley. Captain Smith's company of forty men were back of Lunalilo Home.

One of the Cabinet officers stated last night that there was a possibility that the native police would be sent into the mountains to locate the rebels, their knowledge of the mountains and passes giving them an advantage over the Government troops for such work.

IN PAUOA VALLEY.

Nothing Seen of Robert Wilcox or His Party Yesterday.

Robert Wilcox and his few followers are now in hiding in the brush on the east side of Nuuanu

Valley. They have retreated just as far as they can and nothing remains for them but death by starvation or surrender. It is generally believed that the leader will not give himself up and will fight to the last.

That the rebels are located in Nuuanu is almost certain as their tracks could be seen at the head of Manoa. The men are surrounded by Government forces; one party is stationed at Koolau, another at the Pali, while Nuuanu Valley is well guarded.

The sharpshooters under Captain Kidwell, numbering about forty men, arrived in the Pauoa camp yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock. They had been scouring the upper portion of Pauoa but did not come across Wilcox's party. They discovered tracks of the rebels. Captain Kidwell thought that the men had retreated towards Nuuanu, hoping to escape by way of Koolau.

The sharpshooters had a long tramp yesterday. They appeared at the head of the valley, some waving truce flags. In the distance they looked like natives and there was great excitement in camp, many believing that the rebels were surrendering themselves. As the party moved nearer it was soon learned that it was composed of Captain Kidwell's men. Before they reached camp word was passed around that they had killed two men and had three prisoners in tow. This report proved to be incorrect, no one was shot and no prisoners were taken. The riflemen said that they had fired at what appeared to be two retreating figures and that was all.

They were a tired looking and hungry lot of men when they struck camp. They were disgusted with everything on account of the non-success of their mission. After eating some lunch the sharpshooters left for town.

During the morning there were no signs of hostile rebels. The Tantalus ridge was thoroughly searched by Lieutenant Coyne and his men. They left Punchbowl about 9 o'clock on Wednesday night and reached and camped at the Japanese nursery. They made an early start and finally reached the Pauoa camp. On their march they caught one native straggler, a half-caste named Poole, and Arthur Fitzgerald.

Poole was mighty glad to surrender, and when he reached camp he was questioned about Wilcox and his movements. The prisoner stated that he and the rebel who was killed by Lieutenant King's men on Wednesday night, both deserted when the sharpshooters made the attack at Manoa. He said that Wilcox had about thirty men with him and intended, if possible, to escape by way of Koolau. Poole is a carpenter. He was in the '89 rebellion. About 150 rounds of ammunition were found upon him. His clothes were torn into shreds and in exposed places his flesh was a mass of scratches, caused by coming in contact with the lantana.

Arthur Fitzgerald is a well-known character about town. He has been hanging around the military camps since Monday. He was found yesterday on the side of Pauoa. He could not give a satisfactory account of himself so was sent in town with the other prisoner. He was released later.

The rebel who was killed in Pauoa Valley on Wednesday night was buried yesterday by a native. The body was not identified, but Poole said he was one of Wilcox's lieutenants. He wore a coat such as was used by the military under the monarchy. The brass buttons were removed and kept as souvenirs by the soldiers.

A report from the front last night stated that the mangled remains of a white man had been found up Manoa, late yesterday, by some of the military. On searching the body the name of L. Marshall was found on the socks.

A report received late last night stated that Wilcox and his men were making for Waimanalo.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Detachments of Companies E and D are located in Pauoa Valley. Last night was the most quiet one since the beginning of hostilities.

Sam Nowlein and his crowd of warriors evidently prefer hiding to fighting.

Sam. K. Pua, formerly a member of the Legislature, was looked up yesterday.

It was learned yesterday that a native named Pua is in the Wilcox camp badly wounded.

Joe Aea was arrested at Manoa yesterday. It was thought that he was with Wilcox's party.

A squad was sent to the top of Diamond Head yesterday but no traces of the rebels could be seen.

Captain Camara is now Commissary for the military forces. He makes a good one, so the boys say.

Tom Walker was arrested yesterday at his home while whitewashing the fence around his premises.

An order has been issued to pass Chester Doyle's brake with a red light through the lines without stoppages.

A native stated yesterday that Theresa Cartwright is with Wilcox. Another native woman is with the rebels also.

Arthur Fitzgerald stated last night that he was chief cook for Captain Zeigler's company on Wednesday night.

A squad of twenty-five men was sent up to Luakaha last night to re-enforce the command under Alfred Carter.

It is said that Wilcox's men are kept together through threats only. They would all desert if they had a good chance.

No one has seen "Major" Seward since Sunday. He is believed to be with Nowlein. When he is captured he will like the place.

Lionel Hart, a clerk in the Foreign Office, hired a horse for one of the rebels on last Sunday. He will probably lose his position for doing so.

Nothing has been heard of Louis Marshall since Sunday. It is generally believed that he, Greig and Widemann are with Sam Nowlein's crowd.

Surgeon Howard and Assistant Hough came in from Pauoa last night. Some shooting was reported above the head of the valley toward Nuuanu.
